Reasons for me to Choose post-graduation in Aviation management at VIVES University of Applied Sciences.

As per my personal research and findings, I came to the conclusion that post graduation in Aviation Management would be the best course of study for me to develop my career. The aviation industry is growing rapidly and there is a demand for highly skilled professionals in various roles. This program will significantly improve my abilities and help me to become a better professional. Another benefit I saw is that by engaging with people from many cultures, I can develop my ability to think in all directions. I can graduate from the program with expertise in a variety of areas, including airport operations, safety of airline companies and team management and more. I looked into other colleges and the academic majors they provide, a post-graduation in Aviation management attracted me the most and I am confident that aviation management would help me achieve my career goals. Therefore, it can be an added advantage to my profession. I found that there are numerous such opportunities in aviation industries in India. I came to the conclusion that if I wanted to be successful in such a very competitive environment, I needed to improve my talents. I will not be able to achieve my great dream with a little upgrade, therefore I looked at courses that would greatly enhance my profile. VIVES University of Applied Sciences is one of the best venues for me to shape my character and professional life, according to my online research. A reputable educational institution, VIVES University of Applied Sciences offers a good number of bachelor and master degrees. I am confident that choosing to enroll in this program would be the finest choice that I have made for myself in terms of building a bright future and achieving my goal of being an aviation professional. The inclusion of courses and the primary modules taught as part of the program determine the success percentage of choosing advanced education. I had a clear understanding of the perfect combination of advanced topics required to succeed in this sector after consulting with various career experts.

Why not India, and why Belgium for pursuing my Master's Program?

When I made the decision to pursue higher education, I started researching the country in which I would need to enroll for the course. Many countries have welcomed students from all over the world. Belgium highly appreciates modern education and technology in their education system. Belgium is a developed country with a broad market economy and better standards of health, education and living. Thanks to the program, I will be able to understand diversity in language, culture, opinions and experiences, which will have a big impact on my personality and future career development. Belgium is a secure country that has managed to urbanize while preserving its rural culture. I am confident that my decision to choose Belgium will let me focus on learning quality over quantity to be a better human being with bright career opportunities.

My Long- term personal and professional goals

Upon program completion, I will have a clear idea of my future ambitions and possible professional prospects. I want to utilize my skills in the field of aviation management that I wish to gain through my master's program. I'm positive that this program will give me the knowledge and intellectual insights. I want to start from scratch and gain maximum knowledge and experience. I want to gain experience by working with professionals in the field of aviation management. I personally want to open up all the possible opportunities in the field of aviation management. On the other hand, career opportunities are more competitive, and because of the high rate of unemployment, they are forced to do a job in which they don't have experience or in which they cannot find happiness. Wages provided are very low, which makes it difficult for an individual to meet his or her daily needs. This scenario brings trauma to many students in my country and makes them insecure about choosing a relevant field. I personally wanted to bring a change by promoting the importance and scope of aviation management to build a sustainable nation.

After completing the program, I need to build my career. I'll fully commit to my work and develop my future better. Once I complete my education, I need to gain more experience, which will help me to implement it in my country in the future. I was curious to settle abroad to build and achieve a job that I enjoy. But as I grew older, I realized that helping my country grow a step forward to more developed would be something I may cherish throughout my life. This particular reason made me realise the importance of foreign education. It can help me understand how other developed nations work so that I can adapt the methodologies for my own nation.

I was able to grow a dream of pursuing a degree like this in Belgium, because my family has always supported me, and I have been incredibly committed to them since I was a young child. Therefore, as a moral daughter, once I graduate from the program, I must repay their support.

My long-term objective is to take care of my parents as they age and let them know how much I value all of the love and support they have given me. India is home to my vast extended family as well as numerous other relatives. Indian faith, culture and rituals are very appealing to me. The Indian environment functions as the primary canvas for all of my career goals and desires. I am adamant that I should use my international education to build a pleasant life for myself in India.

The course I intend to take will be beneficial to me in the future as an airport professional. I'm certain you'll consider my application and allow me to pursue my academic objectives and long-term dreams.

Sincerely,

Nithya V Nair.
