

Motivation Letter

To the Admissions Committee

I look forward to applying for the International Administration Bachelor's degree offered at Lucerne University of Applied Sciences and Arts. I am currently pursuing a Bachelor's degree in Computer Science, with experience within technical, programming, and project-based skills. An interest in entrepreneurship and ideas propelled by innovative tech has caught my attention. Along this journey, not only is my technical foundation building; I am also developing this business world from a holistic perspective.

These innovatively challenging projects have shaped my academic career, focused on solving real-world problems that demand critical thinking with creative solutions. I combined this technical knowledge with communications and presentation skills through the soft skills courses, followed by training in marketing and management. These experiences prepared me to be a bold communicator and critical thinker-abilities I have further enriched through group discussions, debates, and event management throughout my school years.

That's where my intentions to find out about business end: I dig deeper into areas such as the stock market and finance to get a good understanding of how businesses evolve and grow. Motivation to study at Lucerne University of Applied Sciences and Arts, because it offers the perfect setting in an internationally diverse environment emphasizing the value of applied sciences and experience of direct project experience from the real world.

I would be delighted to join this vibrant community at Lucerne University of Applied Sciences and Arts and learn from their faculty and peers who belong to different backgrounds. I will greatly appreciate it if my application is considered. I shall look forward to the chance of joining HSLU and working towards an achievable future in the globalized business world.

Yours sincerely,
Salman Shaik
