Why not India, and why Latvia for pursuing my Master's Program?

When I made the decision to pursue higher education, I started researching the country in which I would need to enroll for the course. Many countries have welcomed students from all over the world. Latvia highly appreciates science and modern environmental technology in their education system. Latvia is a developed country with a broad market economy and better standards of health, education, and living. Thanks to the program, I will be able to understand diversity in language, culture, opinions, and experience, which will have a big impact on my personality and future career development. Latvia is a secure country that has managed to urbanize while preserving its rural culture. I am confident that my decision to choose Latvia will let me focus on learning quality over quantity to be a better human being with bright career opportunities.

My Long- term personal and professional goals

Upon program completion, will have a clear idea of my future ambitions and possible professional prospects. I want to utilize my skills in the field of environment with contemporary environmental technologies that I wish to gain through my master's program. I'm positive that this program will give me the knowledge and intellectual insights I need to develop into an exceptional scientist in the future. I want to start from scratch and gain maximum knowledge and experience, which I would like to apply to the present environmental issues. I want to gain experience by working with professionals. I personally want to open up all the possible opportunities in the field of Civil engineering. Every year, a large number of Post graduates are hired by numerous Indian organizations for a variety of positions across numerous industries. Many large Indian companies offer opportunities for Civil professionals. On the other hand, career opportunities for degree graduates are minimal, and because of the high rate of unemployment, they are forced to do a job in which they don't have experience or in which they cannot find happiness. Wages provided are very low, which makes it difficult for an individual to meet his or her daily needs. This scenario brings trauma to many students in my country and makes them insecure about choosing a relevant field.

Once I complete my education, I need to gain more experience, which will help me to implement it in my country in the future. I was curious to settle abroad to build and achieve a job that I enjoy. But as I grew older, I realized that helping my country grow a step forward to more developed would be something I may cherish throughout my life. This particular reason made me realize the importance of foreign education. It can help me understand how other developed nations work so that I can adapt the methodologies for my own nation.

I was able to grow a dream of pursuing a masters like this in Latvia because my family has always supported me, and I have been incredibly committed to them since I was a young child. Therefore, once I graduate from the program, I must repay their support. I'm excited to get home and spend time with my family after my program is done. As a moral son, I do have a moral duty to support my parents. My parents are funding my studies and are very supportive of my wish to pursue this further study in Latvia.

I want to be there for my parents when the program ends and help them out emotionally. My long-term objective is to take care of my parents as they age and let them know how much I value all of the love and support they have given me. India is home to my vast extended family as well as numerous other relatives. Indian faith, culture, and rituals are very appealing to me. The Indian environment functions as the primary canvas for all of my career goals and desires. I am adamant that I should use my international education to build a pleasant life for myself in India.

The course I intend to take will be beneficial to me in the future as a manager professional. I'm certain you'll consider my application and allow me to pursue my academic objectives and long-term dreams.

Sincerely,

Vinaayak R
